My work as a creative individual is highly multi-disciplinary and has led me to many activities which I see as all part of a holistic practice and approach to living. Through an intensive examination of the idea of process itself I engage with the world through Painting, Sculpture and Installation but also through landscape design, writing, coaching & mentoring, curating and thinking in general. My spiritual practice as a student of meditation is a feedback loop with my creative endeavours. I try to eliminate the difference between hands on building / mark making and communication with my collaborators and clients, attempting to bring out one insightful message which aligns with my authentic values.

As a migrant now living in Spain, I strive to engage fully with the local arts and music community through collaborative projects and exhibitions whilst maintaining an integral link to my home in Scotland; largely through my work at the Society of Scottish Artists. This ongoing connection with Scotland's oldest artist led organisation has led me to curate the Society's annual show, lead our essay initiative, help direct our ground breaking mentoring program and assist in steering the society through the legal and constitutional changes required to move from an artist led organisation to an incorporated charity, allowing greater possibilities for fund raising and crucial projects for Scottish Art.

Whatever work I am engaged in doing, I give my full spectrum of knowledge, experience and values to as I believe a life enriched with creative thinking makes the world a better place.
